THE GENEVA ASSOCIATION

Rachel Anne Carter

Director, Cyber

Rachel Anne Carter is the Director of Cyber for The Geneva Association. Under Rachel's leadership, the Cyber research programme aims to help stakeholders understand cyber risks, and in particular, to assist the insurance industry in devising ways to respond effectively to cyber risks as they evolve. She co-founded and currently manages the Journal of Terrorism and Cyber Insurance.

Rachel comes to The Geneva Association with a variety of research, strategy, underwriting, policy, consulting, regulatory and corporate experience, with specialties in catastrophe risk (re)insurance solutions and disaster-risk financing options. She has worked with the OECD, Pool Re, Lloyd's, Tokio Marine Kiln and AmTrust International and was a specialist in cyber terrorism for the Cambridge University Centre for Risk Studies. Rachel is a regular speaker at international conferences and author of published articles on cyber insurance and terrorism insurance issues. She also managed a successful consulting business that offered strategic guidance in the areas of terrorism and cyber insurance solutions.

Rachel holds a PhD in Law (Insurance).
