

The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance Call for papers

The Geneva Association is pleased to announce a special April 2022 issue of The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance – Issues and Practice on

Emerging Health Risks and Insurance

We encourage you to submit contributions related to the following areas:

- The role of insurance in managing pandemic risks
- Insurance and the promise of digital health
- Financing and insuring environmental health risks
- Insurance, behavioural changes and the rise of non-communicable diseases
- Personalised medicine and insurance coverage
- Health insurance and population health management
- The importance of data in predicting and managing health risks
- Financial protection and mental health
- The role of risk securitisation in managing health risks
- Trends in emerging health risks and the implications for health insurance systems

Suggestions for other topics will be considered by the editors.

Review process

All contributions will go through a peer review process. The editors for this special issue are Christophe Courbage (Geneva School of Business Administration) and Luke Connelly (The University of Queensland; The University of Bologna).

Further information

Papers should be submitted electronically via the website of The Geneva Papers (<https://www.editorialmanager.com/gpri/>) by 19 April 2021 at the latest.

For further information on The Geneva Papers, visit <http://www.palgrave-journals.com/gpp/>

For further information on this special issue, please contact Hannah Dean at hannah_dean@genevaassociation.org